

ZOE GENEVIEVE LEBLANC

HISTORIAN & DEVELOPER

PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

I'm currently completing my doctorate in history at Vanderbilt University and recently completed the Nashville Software School Software Developer Bootcamp. I'm interested in opportunities where I can further my knowledge of software development, contribute to digital humanities projects, and collaborate with a team. I'm particularly passionate about developing new methods for researchers to create and share knowledge.

EXPERIENCE

Data Developer, Aspire Health, 03/2017-Present

Responsible for building internal data analysis applications and normalizing data structures. Worked with both development and data science teams to increase patient enrollment.

Teaching Assistant, Department of History, Vanderbilt University, 09/2012-05/2015

Taught undergraduate courses on American, Middle East, and Global history. Responsible for classroom management and lesson plan development. Learned communication, writing, and research management skills.
